Tip of the Month

If you're fishing 10 feet with a crankbait, select baits that hit every portion of the water column until you find the fish-holding zone. Drop your baits everywhere from six inches below the surface to touching mud at the lake bottom.

Lake Michigan Coho Salmon Fishing By Eddie Sweiss (grade 9)

When I found out that the fishing team was going to Lake Michigan, I was excited. I love to fish for any kind of species. The team members were to meet at the school at 5:30am, but I was there with my friend Matt at 4:50am! We had a guest come on this trip and his name was Mr. Wagner. He teaches Health and Physical Education at school.

There were 13 students who went on this trip ready to try their luck in the great outdoors. Anyone who has not seen the sun rise over Lake Michigan like we did that morning does not know what they are missing because words cannot describe what we saw that day with our own eyes. We also saw the state of Indiana and maybe even a little bit of Michigan from where we were standing at the 95th Street Harbor.

The weather was partly cloudy, windy and cold (37 degrees in the morning). The lake at first was calm and looked like glass but changed and got choppy as the morning went on.

When I started to fish, I threw a Carolina rig with Gulp! Alive smelt scented shad. For those who do not know what a Carolina rig is, I had a 1/8 oz. weight and a glass bead tied to a barrel swivel with an 8 pound test fluorocarbon leader tied to the other end with a 1/0 off set hook. The rod I used was an Abu Garcia 6ft Agenda one piece medium action with a Royal Express spinning reel with ten bearings. I did this because the water was clear and I did not know how deep the fish were or if they were suspended. I purchased this Gulp! Alive at BassPro Shops a month ago. I saw this bait being used on many fishing shows so I was anxious to see if it worked for me as well as it does for the people on TV. My teammates were using spoons, live bait, crank baits, and other artificial baits.

On my fifth or sixth cast I hooked into a fish. The fish was fighting like crazy! The coho salmon jumped three times before I was able to reel it in. Coach Kuchyt had to run to the other side of the of the area we were fishing to get the net. I was nervous about losing the fish because I only had 8lb monofilament. When the fish was finally in the net, I was extremely happy. We then measured and weighed the fish. It was 27 inches and weighed 8 pounds!

I continued to fish the rest of the morning and had three more bites but missed them all. No one else had any bites. I had a great time on this trip. To me it was a great experience because it was my first time catching a coho salmon. My only wish was that we could have spent the entire day there and that my teammates could have caught something to experience what I did. From myself and all our team members we thank our sponsors and our school for making all of these trips possible for us.

Fish Tales Fishing Club: A Club Worth Knowing About

On Friday, April 23, 2010, high school students from across the state of Illinois will have the unique opportunity to fish in an officially sanctioned high school bass tournament. The Illinois High School Association is the first high school association in America to recognize bass fishing as an official high school activity.

When the program began last year, high school fishing coaches began searching for support for their teams through various fishing clubs in their communities. As a fishing coach, I can attest to spending countless hours talking to various bass clubs and fishing clubs from the south suburbs of Chicago hoping to form a partnership in which young anglers can be mentored by adults who are familiar with the sport of fishing. The members of Fish Tales Fishing Club rose to the occasion and have volunteered to help young anglers from a number of area high schools get started in fishing.

Fish Tales is over 20 years old and includes 175 members whose passion is fishing. The men and women of this club meet on the third Thursday of each month in Oak Forest, IL. Each meeting features a guest speaker who covers anything from salmon fishing to walleye and bass. Fish Tales is not a tournament club. Instead, members share fishing knowledge of all species and arrange trips together. This year, members are organizing trips to the Chippewa Flowage, Pelee Island, Wisconsin River, Lake Jacksonville, and Big Hooks Wilderness Camps.

Fish Tales members are perhaps most proud of their community based initiatives. Each Monday for nine straight weeks, members volunteer their time to work with special needs individuals at South Side Special Recreation Association (SSSRA). Club members donate bait, line, rods and reels, and they fish with disabled and special needs individuals at Centennial Park (Tinley Park, IL). Also sponsored by this club is the SSSRA Regional Fishing Derby in which members of all Chicagoland facilities fish in a one day fishing derby.

Each year, members of Fish Tales also make monetary and toy donations to the Pediatric Oncology Treasure Chest and Toys for Tots. Fish Tales has also helped with the Duke O'Malley Southtown Fishing Derby and they have helped a young man named Rich Deering in his effort to earn an Eagle Scout Badge by starting a special recreation fishing program at Lincoln-Way East. As you can see, this civic minded group is more than just a fishing club.

As the Spartan fishing coach, I have been blessed with the opportunity to associate myself and the team with Fish Tales. Charles Cook, President of Fish Tales Fishing Club, and the members of this wonderful club have donated their time, used fishing rods and reels, tackle, they have shared their knowledge, and they have invited Spartan anglers to their meetings to learn from both them and their guest speakers. They have served as judges for the Ultimate Spartan Angler Challenge (see the January 2010 newsletter) and Fish Tales has even formed a committee to help area fishing teams with their needs!

Last year, 199 Illinois high schools formed fishing teams. This year, there are 225 high school fishing teams! As more high schools create teams, my hope is that adult fishing and bass clubs from across the state partner with local high school fishing teams to help coaches provide the best fishing opportunities for their students.

Thank You
Fish Tales!

About our logo...

The Spartan Fishing Team logo was created and designed by Matt Jensen. Matt is a senior at Oak Lawn Community High School who will be graduating in May. Matt's goals are to attend college where he plans to develop his artistic talent and study business.

Fish Fact

Most species of fish have color vision to a degree and some are much sharper at color discrimination than others. Largemouth bass respond to red above all colors and can even see colors above the surface of the water.
